What We Do

Children's Bureau Day Treatment Intensive Program provides mental health services for children ages 3 to 6 years old who are experiencing severe social, emotional and behavioral problems. These problems prevent them from functioning effectively in the home, school and/or community environments. Children and their families are provided with an array of mental health services individually tailored to meet the child's mental health needs. Interventions are designed to assist children to develop adaptive behaviors, enabling them to function successfully within their different environments.

How We Help

Children in our program participate in a variety of group activities which focus on positive socialization and skill building. They also participate in recreational activities designed to teach team work, taking turns, conflict resolution and compliance skills. Additionally, art and music therapy are implemented in order to inspire children to be creative, express their feelings in a positive manner and learn self-calming skills. Involvement by parents/caregivers is needed in order to ensure the success of their child. Parents/caregivers are required to attend a minimum of one monthly family session as well as a weekly parenting session.
